

Lawyer at the Paris Bar and a graduate of the DJCE (Diploma in legal advice for companies), Christophe is a founding partner of ALLIUM's law firm and co-manages the firm's employment law department.

Together with Julie and Ingrid, Christophe assists the firm's clients in all aspects of labor law, both collective and individual, concerning the life of the company and the employment contract.

Specialized in the management of litigation in front of all jurisdictions dealing with employment law, Christophe assists and represents employers, executives and managers as well as employee representative bodies. He assists his clients in all litigation related to labor law, in particular before the Labor Court, the Social Security Court, the Judicial Court and, more particularly, before the civil and criminal divisions for criminal labor law disputes.

Christophe also assists his clients during the dismissal procedure, and then in the search for an amicable agreement, always favoring negotiated solutions, which is why he is a certified mediator with the CMAP (Paris Mediation and Arbitration Center). In the absence of an amicable agreement or mediation, Christophe will do his utmost to convince each court in front of which he pleads, of the validity of his clients' position.

Christophe also advises employers and employee representatives in the implementation of corporate social policies, restructurings and day-to-day labor relations issues.

More specifically, Christophe assists his clients in the context of social audits and expert appraisals, restructurings and job protection plans, the organization of working hours, health and safety, staff representation, collective and individual negotiations, compensation and employee savings.

For more than 15 years, Christophe has acquired a solid reputation in the optical sector, where he has a perfect knowledge of the legal and economic issues. His clients are also active in the restaurant, music, fashion, consulting, IT services and new construction sectors.

Apart from that, Christophe has a passion for French and Italian furniture from the 1930s to the 1970s and contemporary art photography. He spends his free time with his family and various interests such as permaculture design or sharing his cooking.
