

Lawyer at the Paris Bar, Julie is a partner and co-manages the employment law department of ALLIUM's law firm.

With 20 years of experience in the field of international labor relations, Julie assists her French and foreign clients in all their labor issues, concerning employees, staff representatives and collective bargaining.

She assists her clients on a daily basis, who are French companies, from small and medium-sized businesses hiring their first employee to CAC40 companies, as well as international groups.

Julie assists them in all stages of projects concerning their employees, from the drafting of documentation to negotiations with employee representatives. She is at ease even in a tense social climate.

She also defends her clients' interests in litigation in front of all labor courts and social security tribunals, as well as in pre-litigation negotiations.

Julie is also involved in the social aspects of restructuring as well as merger and acquisition operations.

She has acquired extensive experience in these transactions, during which she regularly performs due diligence on employment law and advises acquirers, particularly on post-transaction harmonization issues.

Julie is very familiar with the high-tech and pharmaceutical sectors and also assists numerous companies in a wide variety of sectors, ranging from the metal industry to contemporary art galleries.

At ALLIUM, the expertise of her partners enables her to advise her clients on their commercial law, commercial litigation, corporate law, M&A and tax issues. Julie is a member of the Avosial association (corporate lawyers in employment law), in which she actively participates in the Platforms and Employment Law Commission, and she is an associate member of the National Association of Human Resources Managers (ANDRH).

Within ALLIUM, Julie can count on an international network of competent colleagues throughout the world to assist her clients in their transnational projects.

Otherwise, Julie is fond of contemporary art and science fiction and goes on adventures to surf whenever she can.
